
ENGAGE AN AUDIENCE

On Your FEET. present • pitch • persuade

WHY IS IT IMPORTANT?

If you want people to be engaged while you speak, you need to make an effort to connect with them by creating rapport.

Whether you are presenting to a group in-person, or virtually via a webcam, it is important to bring a really good energy that the audience picks up on and reacts positively to.

Rapport creates trust between you and the audience. It increases your likeability, therefore potentially increasing the audiences' engagement, making it an enjoyable experience for everyone!

Building rapport helps you to connect with the audience at a human level – you are demonstrating that you understand them.

By taking a genuine interest in your audience, you will soon build a rapport with them, increasing their engagement and making strong connections.

HOW TO BUILD RAPPORT

Be yourself

Eye contact

Smile

Do not talk to the PowerPoint

Be humble and honest

Dress appropriately

Talk and listen beforehand

Use “we/you” rather than “I”

Appropriate language

Humour

Use names

Avoid TLA's

Start and END on time

HOW TO ENGAGE WITH A VIRTUAL AUDIENCE

When you present virtually, it is harder to pick up on the audiences' reactions. However, it is not impossible!

Act engaged!

Use the word "you"

Use people's names

Encourage idle chat

Add variety

ACT ENTHUSIASTIC
AND YOU WILL BE ENTHUSIASTIC.
